Dear Mr. Davenport:

We are in receipt of your letter dated August 19, 2014.

We dispute your (company's) claim in its entirety, for reasons already documented in our prior correspondence.

We do not ever recall submitting any "Petition for Reconsideration." To do so might be to agree that there's something at all competent about your bogus activity regarding us, whether substantive or procedural. We do not recall ever even remotely treating or considering your (company's) correspondence as anything other than just that: correspondence. Once again, those on your side of this series of exchanges of perspective are presuming facts into existence that do not exist and to which we do not agree or consent.

In further support of our position in this from Day One, even to this very day, not only has your company confessed having no commercial nexus regarding either of us but also there's still no evidence of any agreement, much less one that obligates either of us to any line of conduct or avoidance of conduct on which you're asserting your (company's) claim.

You, like Mr. Lee and Mr. Carlson, are still trying to run a bluff. You're presuming facts into existence that are not facts and that are not agreed to. Your legal conclusions, both procedural and substantive, are, therefore, quite errant. We again assert all our rights, including the right not to contract.

Sincerely,

/s/ Walter Olenick
WALTER OLENICK
